"We all have at least three or more active aspects or personalities within ourselves. Each of these personalities develops in divine time to aid our growth and development. To be effective, these various parts of ourselves must come into harmonious union and work in concert for the greater good."

When we experience an imbalance within ourselves and in our relationships, it is often due to distortions and perversions of our feminine and masculine aspects.

WE MUST BE WILLING TO EXPERIENCE THE FULL SPECTRUM OF OUR BEING.

Dr. Clarissa Pinkola Estes shares in "Women Who Run With Wolves" that "it is typical for women to be afraid to let the too-comfortable and too-safe life die. She is afraid to be without security or certainty even for a short time. "

She goes on to state that we must "simply dive in and stand not knowing what will happen next. It is the only thing that will retrieve our intuitive nature."

The key to living an effective, mastered, and meaningful existence is to consistently examine yourself. What is the story behind the story? In other words, who are the people, what are the circumstances that contributed to you being YOU?

CHANT N' CHAT

This month, let us celebrate our lives. May we embrace and mourn the death of those things that so graciously taught us where we need to love ourselves more. May we breathe through the release of outdated versions of ourselves. Let us justify this divine breath by releasing the false masks we wear to be accepted. In this release, may we trust in our being restored.
